

May is known as a month of transition. If you live in the northern hemisphere, the fresh cold winds are gone, and the rains of early spring.

By the time May comes around, the spring flowers are blooming, birds are chirping, and life is starting to seem a little more joyful day by day!

If you're on the other side of the world, in the southern hemisphere, then it's a time when summer is long gone. The fall winds have swept by, and the nights are getting colder and darker.

It's a time of change, yet still delightfully warm.

Mother's Day is a special day for honoring a special someone. How do we adequately honor someone who has done so much for us?

Many are privileged to still have their mothers with them and can easily make a phone call, bring a card, or just come close to give a special hug. Mothers treasure gifts such as these, and the time and attention that goes along with them.

For many, though, thoughts of Mother come out of the treasures of the heart, as she is no longer here. Memories remain, though. Memories of a conversation that seems like just yesterday, memories from an old photograph she left behind, or memories evoked from a treasured object she once held dear. I wonder what stories these objects could tell, objects such as a special quilt, or a well-used set of dishes, if they could only speak! It is perhaps in the sharing of these stories, along with the thoughts that accompany them, where we best honor those memories of Mother.

In John 19, we see how Jesus, even in those last hours on the cross, took special consideration for his mother, committing her into the care of John, the disciple whom he loved. In this way Jesus also honored his mother by ensuring she would be cared for even after he was gone.

May you be blessed in whatever way you honor your mother this Mother's Day, and may you be blessed if you happen to be one of those mothers!
