"July is hot afternoons and sultry nights and mornings when its a joy just to be alive.

July is a picnic, a red canoe, a sunburned neck and a softball game and ice tinkling in a tall glass." – Hal Borland

Tickle your Funny Bone!

I finally got my hearing checked.
It turns out I'm just really good at ignoring people!

Every time I find the key to success,
someone changes the lock!

An elderly couple had dinner at another couple's house, and after eating,
the wives left the table and went into the kitchen.

The two elderly gentlemen were talking,
and one said, "Last night we went out to a new restaurant, and it was really great.
I would recommend it very highly."

The other man said,
"What is the name of the restaurant?"
The first man thought and thought and finally said,

What is the name of that flower
you give to someone you love?
You know... the one that is red and has thorns."

"Do you mean a rose?"

"Yes," the man said.

He turned toward the kitchen
and yelled,

"Rose, what's the name of that restaurant
we went to last night?"

July Events in Canada

Across the provinces,
speeches were delivered by leaders who had worked tirelessly to make Confederation
a reality,

including John A. Macdonald and Georges-Étienne Cartier, who spoke of unity, prosperity,
and the future of the nation.

Their words inspired the crowds,
who cheered for the new government
and the bright future
they believed lay ahead for Canada.

Though the celebrations varied from town to town, the spirit of the day was consistent:
Canada,

on this first day of July 1867, had taken its first steps as a united and independent nation,
a milestone that would shape
its identity and destiny for years to come.
The day was filled with bells ringing and closed with fireworks
lighting up the evening sky,
a fitting end to a day that would forever be remembered in Canadian history as Dominion Day—the birth of Canada.

"If I had my way, I'd remove January from the calendar altogether and have an extra July instead." -- Roald Dahl

From the Chaplain

In Matthew 14 we read about Jesus inviting Peter to step out onto the water. Though the walk went well at first, Peters' gaze was soon distracted by the storm around him. As the waves rolled in, Peters' faith went down and he plunged into the water. As he sank into the sea, though, he called out to the only one who could save him, and soon he felt the strong grip of the Lord's hand pulling him back up. "Why did you doubt?" Jesus asked Peter. Why indeed? Would we have acted any differently had we had been in Peters' place?

If it was us drenched by the rain and blown by the wind, would our faith have stood the test of that storm?

It's one thing to read about something that has happened to someone else, but an entirely different thing to have been the one experiencing it firsthand. The tests of life will come but the Lord encourages us to trust him in those hard times. So, when the winds of life are blowing us and the waves are rising, let's not get distracted by the waves but keep our eyes on the Lord. Russell Carter penned the words of the song, Standing on the promises that cannot fail, When the howling storms of doubt and fear assail, By the living Word of God, I shall prevail,

Standing on the promises of God.
May the Lord bless you and keep you.
